IVIAN

The story of a school and its people and how it fulfills its objective — "Training of Mind, Hand, and Heart."

MOSAIC SYMBOLIZES LIFE AT MANUAL

Just inside the front entrance of Emmerich Manual Training High School embedded in the terazzo floor of the main hall is a large circular design. Composed of more than twenty colors of warm pastel hues, it is like a big welcome mat to the more than 1,600 students, the faculty and staff members, and the visitors who cross it each school day.

The design itself is mosaic in composition, and its various parts symbolize the mosaic that makes up life at Manual. In the center is the torch of learning across an open book, symbolic of academic education. Around this central section, the circle is divided into eight segments each of which contains a design representing a division of the school. Forming the outside border is an endless spray of Manual's traditional ivy.

The 1955 Ivian is a mosaic, too—a composite picture of the school year. It pictures Manual's people and their school life—classes, activities, social events.

The original drawing for the mosaic was made by Mr. Oran Davis, head of the Art Department. The mosaic itself was a gift to the school from the Midwestern Terazzo Company, the company which installed the floor.

EXIT

Auditorium Serves School and Community

The Auditorium, with its 1,162 maroon leather seats, is located in the south wing of the building. Completed in Spring 1954, it was used for the first time during the P-TA Fiesta.

The 60 by 36 foot stage is equipped with a series of twelve curtains, including the deep-red act curtain. A professional control panel operated by a student stage crew provides illumination for both house and stage.

Immediately in front of the stage is an orchestra pit large enough to accommodate Manual's dance band or concert orchestra when accompanying student productions.

Located just west of the stage is a large stage-craft room in which a regular class builds sets and props and where stage accessories are stored. There are also four dressing rooms in this section.

Spotlights which may be focused on the "stars" are operated from the projection booth above the rear of the Auditorium.

Programs for which the Auditorium is used include many civic functions as well as regular student assemblies and productions.

On the opposite page Principal C. Edgar Stahl addresses a student assembly.

Programs Employ Many Talents

All-school assemblies include cultural, educational, and entertaining programs. The small pictures at the right are reminiscent of a variety of these—The Ivian's campaign skit; Basil Milovsaroff, a guest puppeteer; Pruth McFarland, concert tenor, and Dr. Frank Slutz, youth counselor from Dayton, Ohio, speaker on Student Council Recognition Day for an Indianapolis Student Council meeting.

Student stage hands operate all stage equipment just as Bill Garnatz is shown waiting for his cue.

"We pledge allegiance . . ." Cadet Lt. Colonel James Stainbrook leads the student body in the pledge to the flag after the presentation of colors. In the background is the Manual choir. During this program the Southside Exchange Club presented The Freedom Shrine, a permanent exhibit of 28 authentic reproductions of historical documents, to the school.

Manual's $4,500,000 building and spacious campus are shown in this aerial view. The one blot on the landscape is the construction of the new Madison Avenue bridge over Pleasant Run. The bridge will be a part of the super-highway which will pass Manual's front door. It will be a good many months before this project is completed.

This wooden footbridge is a temporary crossing over Pleasant Run for Manualites and their neighbors. Although not much to look at, it does provide a way to cross over the creek.

Four curious Manualites become sidewalk superintendents, observing construction work on the new bridge. Just behind them is the pile-driver which has made itself heard throughout the building.

Language Arts

Symbolic of three methods of communication—reading, writing, and speaking—is the Language Arts segment of the Mosaic, representing English, social studies, and languages. These expose Manual pupils to past and present cultures, laying the foundation for better human relations. Manual's modern library, shown below, provides study facilities for all students.

"Good Morning to you from the studio of WMHS," greets Manualites each morning at 7:55 from their own radio station which is operated by Radio Speech students. Marilyn Bates, Roger Smith, and Jim Hancock prepare for a morning's program.

Orators Amy Lou Nelson and Al Helms each won a first place in the Social Studies Department's annual Extemporaneous Speaking Contest. Participants were judged before a student assembly.

Mrs. Edna Gullett, Social Studies teacher, and Sylvia Weber, (Back row, fourth and fifth persons) represented Manual when Indianapolis high school senior representatives visited the UN in October.

Developing Skill in Communication Opens Roads Toward Opportunities

The art of self-expression is developed at Manual through all studies in the Language Arts field. Good vocabulary and a store of fundamental knowledge are necessary tools for communication. Developing a taste for literature, both current and classic, interpreting history, modern and past, contribute to this needed background.

Latin is taught to give students better understanding of English and the ability to build vocabulary. The study of a modern tongue, such as Spanish, helps bridge international barriers.

Student Librarians Elaine Holland and Pat McVey assist Jim Vance with an outside reading assignment.

Phillip Faller reports on Spanish customs to his classmates, who study Spanish speaking peoples along with their study of the language.

Joe Bailey divides "all Gaul" into three parts for Elaine McVay in Latin class. Latin ceases to be a dead language when it assumes its place in history.

The Senior Drama, presented November 19, was "What A Life," by Clifford Goldsmith. A history teacher, Carl Huffman, registers a complaint against Henry Aldrich, Jim Stainbrook, with the principal played by Clifford Perry. The comedy was the first of two plays acted and produced by the senior class.

Mask and Wig, long Manual's dramatic group, was supplemented in March by National Thespian Troupe No. 1492.

Manual's Reading Laboratory helps pupils speed up their reading pace and, at the same time, teaches better comprehension and builds vocabulary. Here students work in a quiet, pleasant atmosphere, motivated only by their own desire to improve.

Friday is Always 'Booster' Day

For Everyone At Manual

Deadlines come once a week for Booster staff members. The Booster, published by a student staff is circulated free through Home Rooms every Friday, with a few exceptions for vacations.

Organized like a real newspaper, with editor-in-chief and page editors, The Booster endeavors to "cover" the school. Special editions for Christmas, Sectional Tournament, Alumni Reunion, and April Fools' Day add variety to the routine.

Last year The Booster received an All-American Honor Rating from the National Scholastic Press Association.

Circulation Manager Carol Stellhorn and Business Manager Marilyn Bates dole out Boosters to Home Room Agents.

"The Bobs," a quintet of Glee Club girls, encourage spectators to "Buy An Ivian" during the Ivian Auditorium skit. They are Rita Snoddy, Sue Trinkle, Beverly Kinnick, Judy Christopher, and Judy Campbell.

Manual's News Bureau sends news releases to the city and community newspapers and to the radio stations. Linda Gandy, Bureau head, telephones her paper to arrange for a picture. Other correspondents are Martha Detamore, Donna Dilley, and Elaine Foster.

Ivian Staffers Experience Hard Work and Thrills of Yearbook Publication

A yearbook staff is appointed a year in advance of the book's publication. This year's Ivian staff started its long grind in summer 1954. Several editors, along with Booster staffers, attended the High School Journalism Institute at Indiana University for two weeks in July, where plans and layouts were started.

After months of snapping, cropping, and mounting pictures, writing and rewriting copy, and working over layouts, The 1955 Ivian went to press in April.

The '55 staff closed its big year by playing host at the annual autograph party in the Cafeteria on distribution day. Here's "30" for The Ivian—1955 edition.

Fine Arts

An artist's palette and brushes set in the Mosaic call attention to Manual's Art Department where students learn to master these tools under skilled instructors.

In addition to regular art classes, the crafts and jewelry sections permit pupils an even greater freedom of expression through their hands. Below, Don Stewart forms a vase on the motorized potter's wheel.

Persons and groups in need of artistic help find willing hands in Manual's Art Department. A background scene was needed for the annual Christmas program. Marvin Newland and Mr. Oran Davis, head of the Art Department, combined their talents to produce the stained glass window on the right, where they are shown discussing its final details.

In jewelry class, Manual artists learn this ancient craft while surrounded by the most modern equipment. Harold Claiborne is shown below taking the rough edges off of a ring.

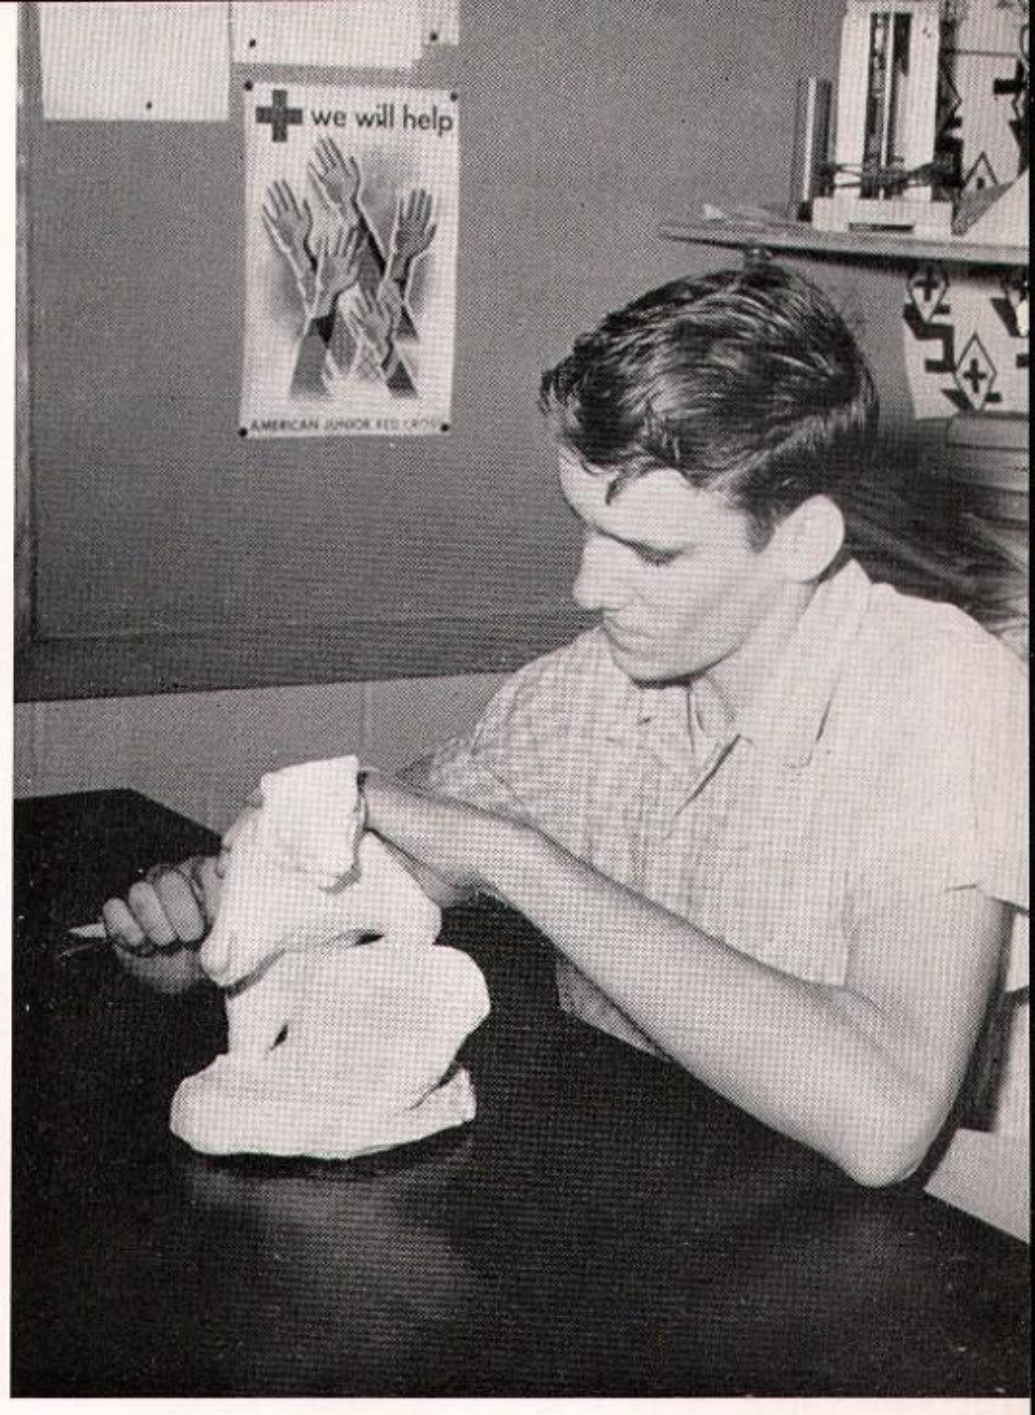
Art Fosters Self-Expression

Students with a talent and a liking for art find many means of self expression in Manual's Art Department. Working in many media gives each a chance to try them all and find his best while learning modern techniques.

Instructors encourage and develop initiative as young artists create from their original ideas and inspirations.



Smoothing the plaster on his sculptured bear, Jim Petree completes a project in Crafts class. Other skills taught in the crafts section include work in leather, plastic, and woodcarving.

In Art Production Class, students are putting the finishing touches on the snowflake decorations for the Music Department's dance, the Snow Whirl. Posters for various school functions are also made by this class.

Music

The Music Department's segment of the Mosaic contains a lyre, an ancient stringed instrument often used as a symbol for music. The department itself is completely modern and progressive, its various units bringing state-wide acclaim to Manual. Band members Bob Read, Ed Throm, Tommy Fisher, Ralph Niehaus, and Ora Pemberton are shown during an impromptu practice session in the band room.

By participating in school assemblies, the Music Department entertains Manualites with vocal and instrumental music. One of its annual contributions is the Christmas program during which the Choir and Glee Club blend their voices in traditional hymns and Christmas carols.

Besides school functions, this department presents programs throughout the community for the benefit of churches, hospitals, and various civic groups.

When Manual's Band is on the move, Supply Officers Dan Brown and George Gritton are the muscles for moving and the security for the instruments and sheet music.

The organ prelude by Deloris Fox is a feature of most assemblies. Deloris, shown at the organ in the orchestra pit, is the official accompanist for the Choir.

Student Originality Has Its Day

Four big acts make up the Redskin Revue, Manual's annual student-written and produced vaudeville. Mr. E. Edward Green, director of productions, is shown above conferring with act sponsors. Seated, Linda Bloemker, Teddy Winckelbach, and Helen Webb. Standing, Jane Clark, Nora May Stevason, Charlene Muse, Laura Snoddy, and Mr. Philip Hirsch, stage director.

Music Department Goes 'All Out'

The Music Department's cooperative production, an operetta, combines both music and dramatic abilities. The Art Department also "gets into the act" by planning and helping to produce settings and designing posters for publicity.

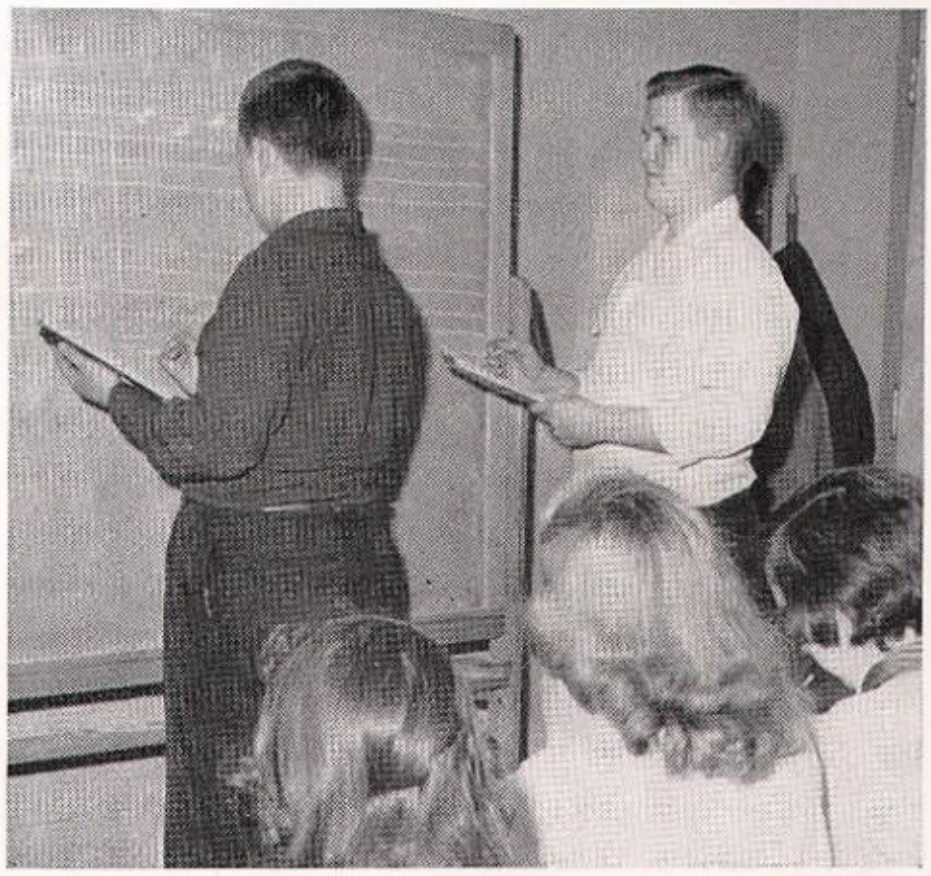
Above in a scene from "The Count and the Coed" are Larry Barker, Lou Ellen Crow, Delores Fox, and Al Helms.

There's Always Music in the Air in Manual's South Wing

It may be the blended voices of the Choir or Glee Club, harmonizing chords put together by harmony students, the soft vibrations of percussion instruments, or a sweet melody from the orchestra's strings; but there is always music.

Hundreds of students participate in sixteen periods of music instruction each day. Vocal and instrumental music classes produce talented performers for student productions.

Manual musicians also entertain for school parties and club meetings.



Danny Chapell and Larry Barker "build" chords for Mrs. Edith Binkley's Harmony class. Harmony gives a student a better appreciation of good music and may even start him on the road to becoming a composer.

Sparkling, 3-D snow flakes, made by Miss Gladys Denney's Art Production Class, create atmosphere for the Music Department's annual formal dance, the Snow Whirl, January 7. Table decorations included foot-high snowmen and sprigs of spruce. A bank of evergreens walled off the steam-table area of the cafeteria.

Pep Band Adds Spice and Color to Manual Athletic Events

Manualites enjoy their music. Pep Band members, in their bright red derbies and white shirts, can be seen from afar as they bounce through their routines at athletic events. The Pep Band is proof to spectators that enthusiasm is contagious.

The Dance Band, shown below in the Pit, played accompaniments for the Redskin Revue. With its repertoire of modern rhythm, it is always in demand for school dances.

Manual's Marching Band Earned State-wide Recognition

Manual's Band marched its way to many honors, including a First Division, Class A rating given at the Indiana School Music Association Contest. The Band placed first in the city and the county, and fifth in the entire state during the 1954 Indiana State Fair High School Band Contest.

Mr. Earl Blakely, from the Downtown Kiwanis Club, presents the club's award, naming Manual's Band the "outstanding football marching band" in the city, to Director William Kleyla. Looking on are Drum Major Jackie Ball and Band Captain John Norrington.

Home Economics

Because many pioneer homes were illuminated with Betty lamps, this lamp has been chosen as the world-wide symbol for homemaking. In the Mosaic, such a lamp represents Manual's Home Economics Department, offering courses in all phases of homemaking.

Below, Jane Glass serves tea to Laura Snoddy in the Social Practice room.

Splash!

Home Nursing, a "must" for every Manual girl, teaches students how to give First Aid and how to care for the sick. It also has its everyday applications. Mary Riley and Barbara Kirkham are shown bathing the "practice" baby.

Use Level Measurements

Just Sew

Besides having a tape measure, pin cushion, and scissors in the right place, a seamstress must know how to read a pattern and understand the parts of an electric sewing machine. These girls are working on their own projects.

It's fun learning to give a party. An annual event is the Christmas Party given by the Future Homemakers of America for the tots of School 34. Mr. Millard Arnold, normally a Spanish teacher, plays Santa Claus for the FHA for the delighted guests. Miss Mary Jane Grace is sponsor of the club.

Home Ec for boys? Why, certainly! In this age when a fellow has to shift for himself, it's a good idea to know how to do something besides boil water. Boys' Foods is one of the more unusual courses, but it's no snap. Just ask these white-capped chefs what goes into a meal—or better yet, sample some of their concoctions.

Training in Home Making is Practical Training of Mind, Hand, and Heart

Since every girl looks forward to a home of her own, training in homemaking is a popular elective.

In all Home Economics classes, cooperation among pupils is necessary just as it is in the home. Since a girl can't mark her own hemline, Laura Snoddy does the pin-up job for Mary Lou Scherrer.

Miss Kitty Mertz, school nurse, administers an eye test to Frances Bewley as a part of Manual's health program and regular check-ups.

Business

A typewriter and pencil laid in the Mosaic symbolize the Business Education Department where pupils coordinate mind and hand to operate the modern office machines at their disposal. Intra-departmental competition for achievement awards spurs members to greater speed and accuracy.

Those funny "curlicues" Mrs. Nancy Tash is making on the chalkboard mean quite a lot to Manual shorthand students. The difficult symbols, like a foreign language, must be memorized. Shorthand is offered to sophomores and above, and typing must be taken at the same time. This is a case where practice makes for perfection.

Dollars and cents are important to businessmen. Manual pupils are taught to keep accurate books in bookkeeping classes. Someday this valuable instruction will help these students keep their personal accounts or even get jobs. Shown below are Dianna Nauert, Patricia Patterson, and Mary Ann Runyon in Bookkeeping class.

Electrified!

Speed and accuracy are the by-words of business—and the Manual Business Education Department. Here, Rita Hanlon practices on one of the department's eight electric typewriters. Typing is offered at the sophomore level or above.

It 'Whispers in My Ear'

For efficiency and time saving, today's modern businessman uses the dictaphone. To train Manual pupils to use such machines, the Commercial Department offers an office training course. Doris Easley is shown practicing at right.

No 'Hunt and Peckers' Here

Nearly 20 classes of students elected typewriting this year. The students shown at the right are learning this important skill.

Copy Cats!

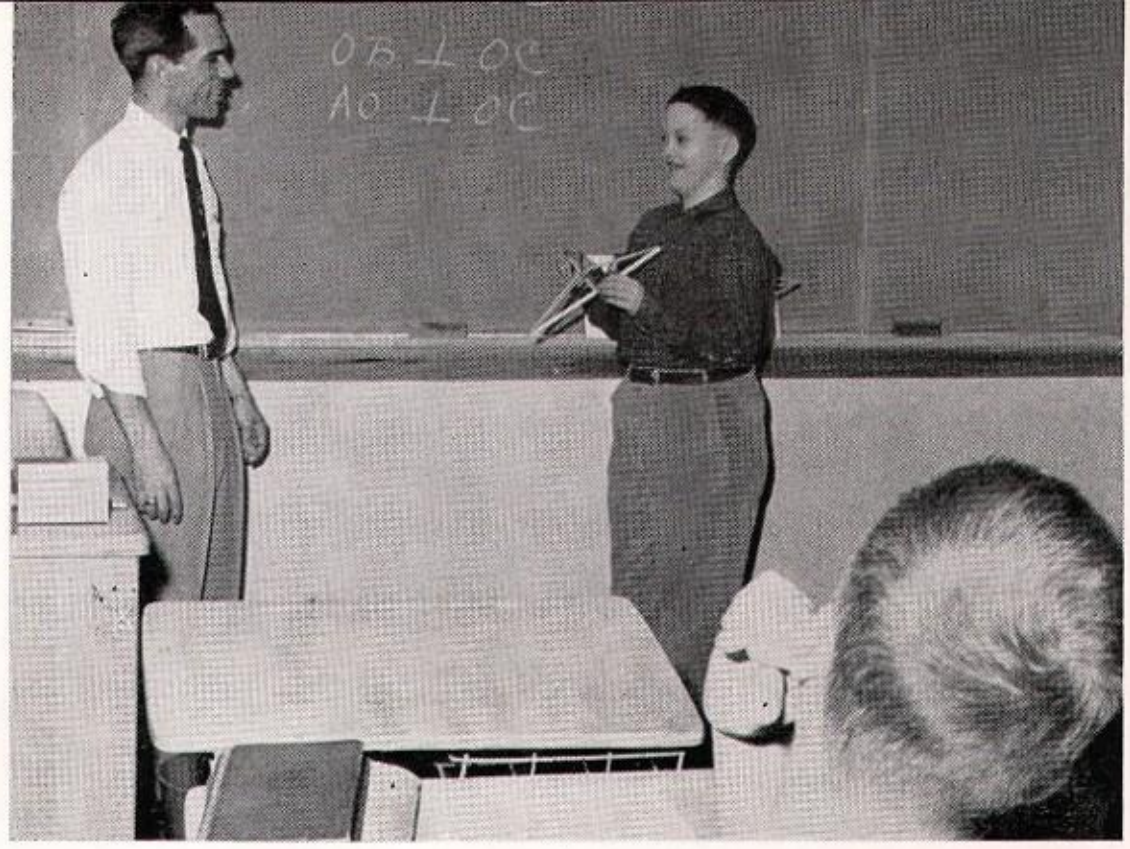
Two of the department's modern business machines are shown here. Business pupils get practical experience by doing actual work for Manual teachers. Carolyn Gum is operating a multigraph while Sandra Coy demonstrates the ditto machine.

Math and Science

In the Mosaic, Manual's Math and Science Department is portrayed by a flask, slide rule, and protractor, the "tools of the trade," used not only to accumulate knowledge, but to increase reasoning power.

Practical experience in biology is provided through the greenhouse, where Theresa Ruffin is shown recording plant growth data for James E. Miller.

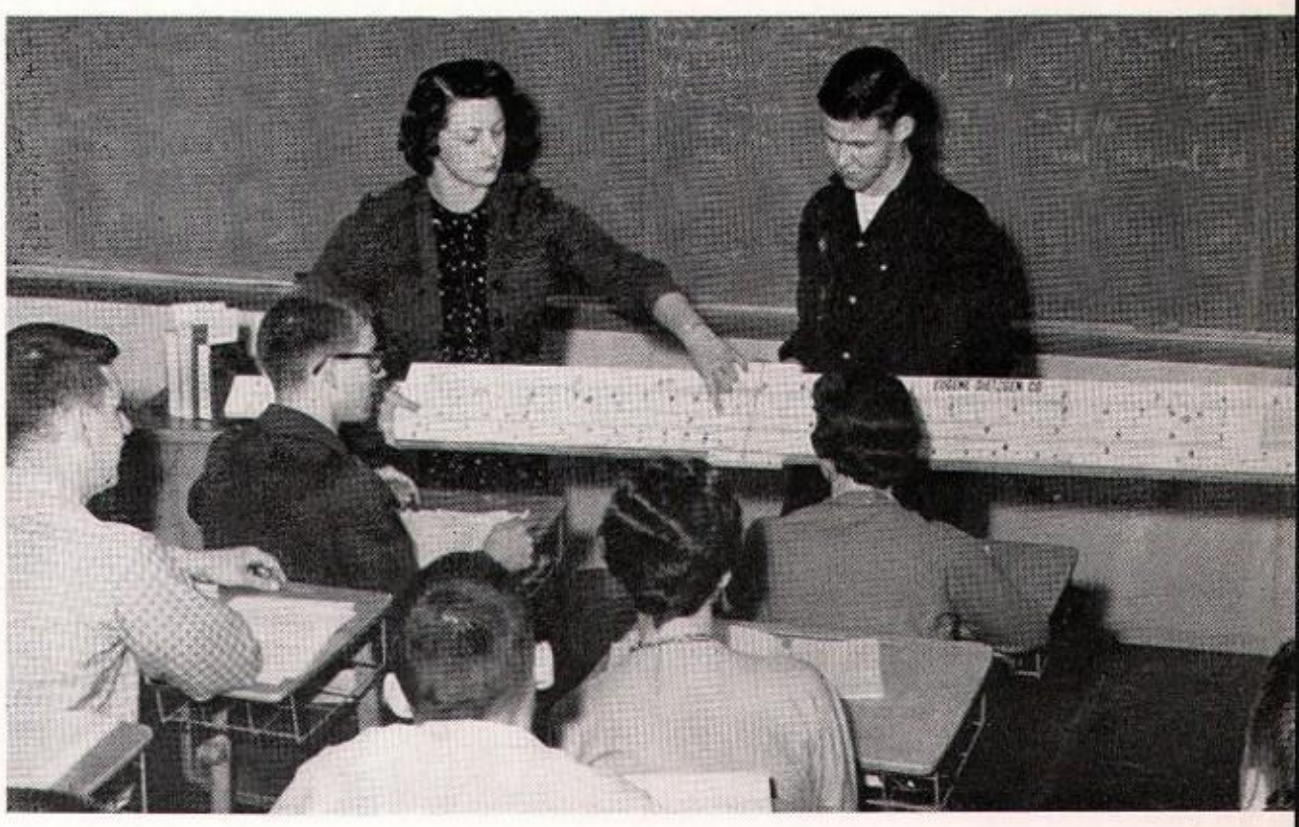
Mathematics courses at Manual are geared for many needs. From basic arithmetic to college algebra, courses are designed to improve students' thinking powers and prepare them for future practical problems.



Solid Geometry student Don Rosebrock explains the geometric figure he is holding to the class and his teacher, Mr. Ben Parke. Solid Geometry is an advanced math course offered to juniors and seniors.

Those equations on the board will soon be taking on quite a different form as these Algebra students prepare to graph them. Lovelle Stephenson (left) plots the points for the graph with Don Kerner (right). Bob Snoddy (center) draws the axes for the graph.

"Now move the hairline over to the last number," explains Mrs. Jennie Howe, as members of her Algebra IV class learn to work with the slide rule. Ralph Grant is assisting her.



"Acids, bases, and titrations" are familiar terms to chemistry students. Here, Shirley McHenry and Lois Perkinson experiment using burettes. Chemistry students use the department's modern equipment to observe chemical reactions first hand. Individual projects take up much of each student's time in researching and experimenting.

Physics students do many experiments including ones showing the properties of different metals. Here, Bill Evans and Ken Hadley use equipment that measures the expansion of metals under the same amount of heat. Upperclassmen may take the two-semester course.

Alert Minds Seek Answers to Nature's Puzzles in Modern Labs

Physical Science gives a general picture of physics, chemistry, and biology. Many students take the course as a preliminary to other sciences or to satisfy a graduation requirement while getting much general knowledge. At the left, Don Byers, Gus Sansone, and Andy Oehler wire a model village.

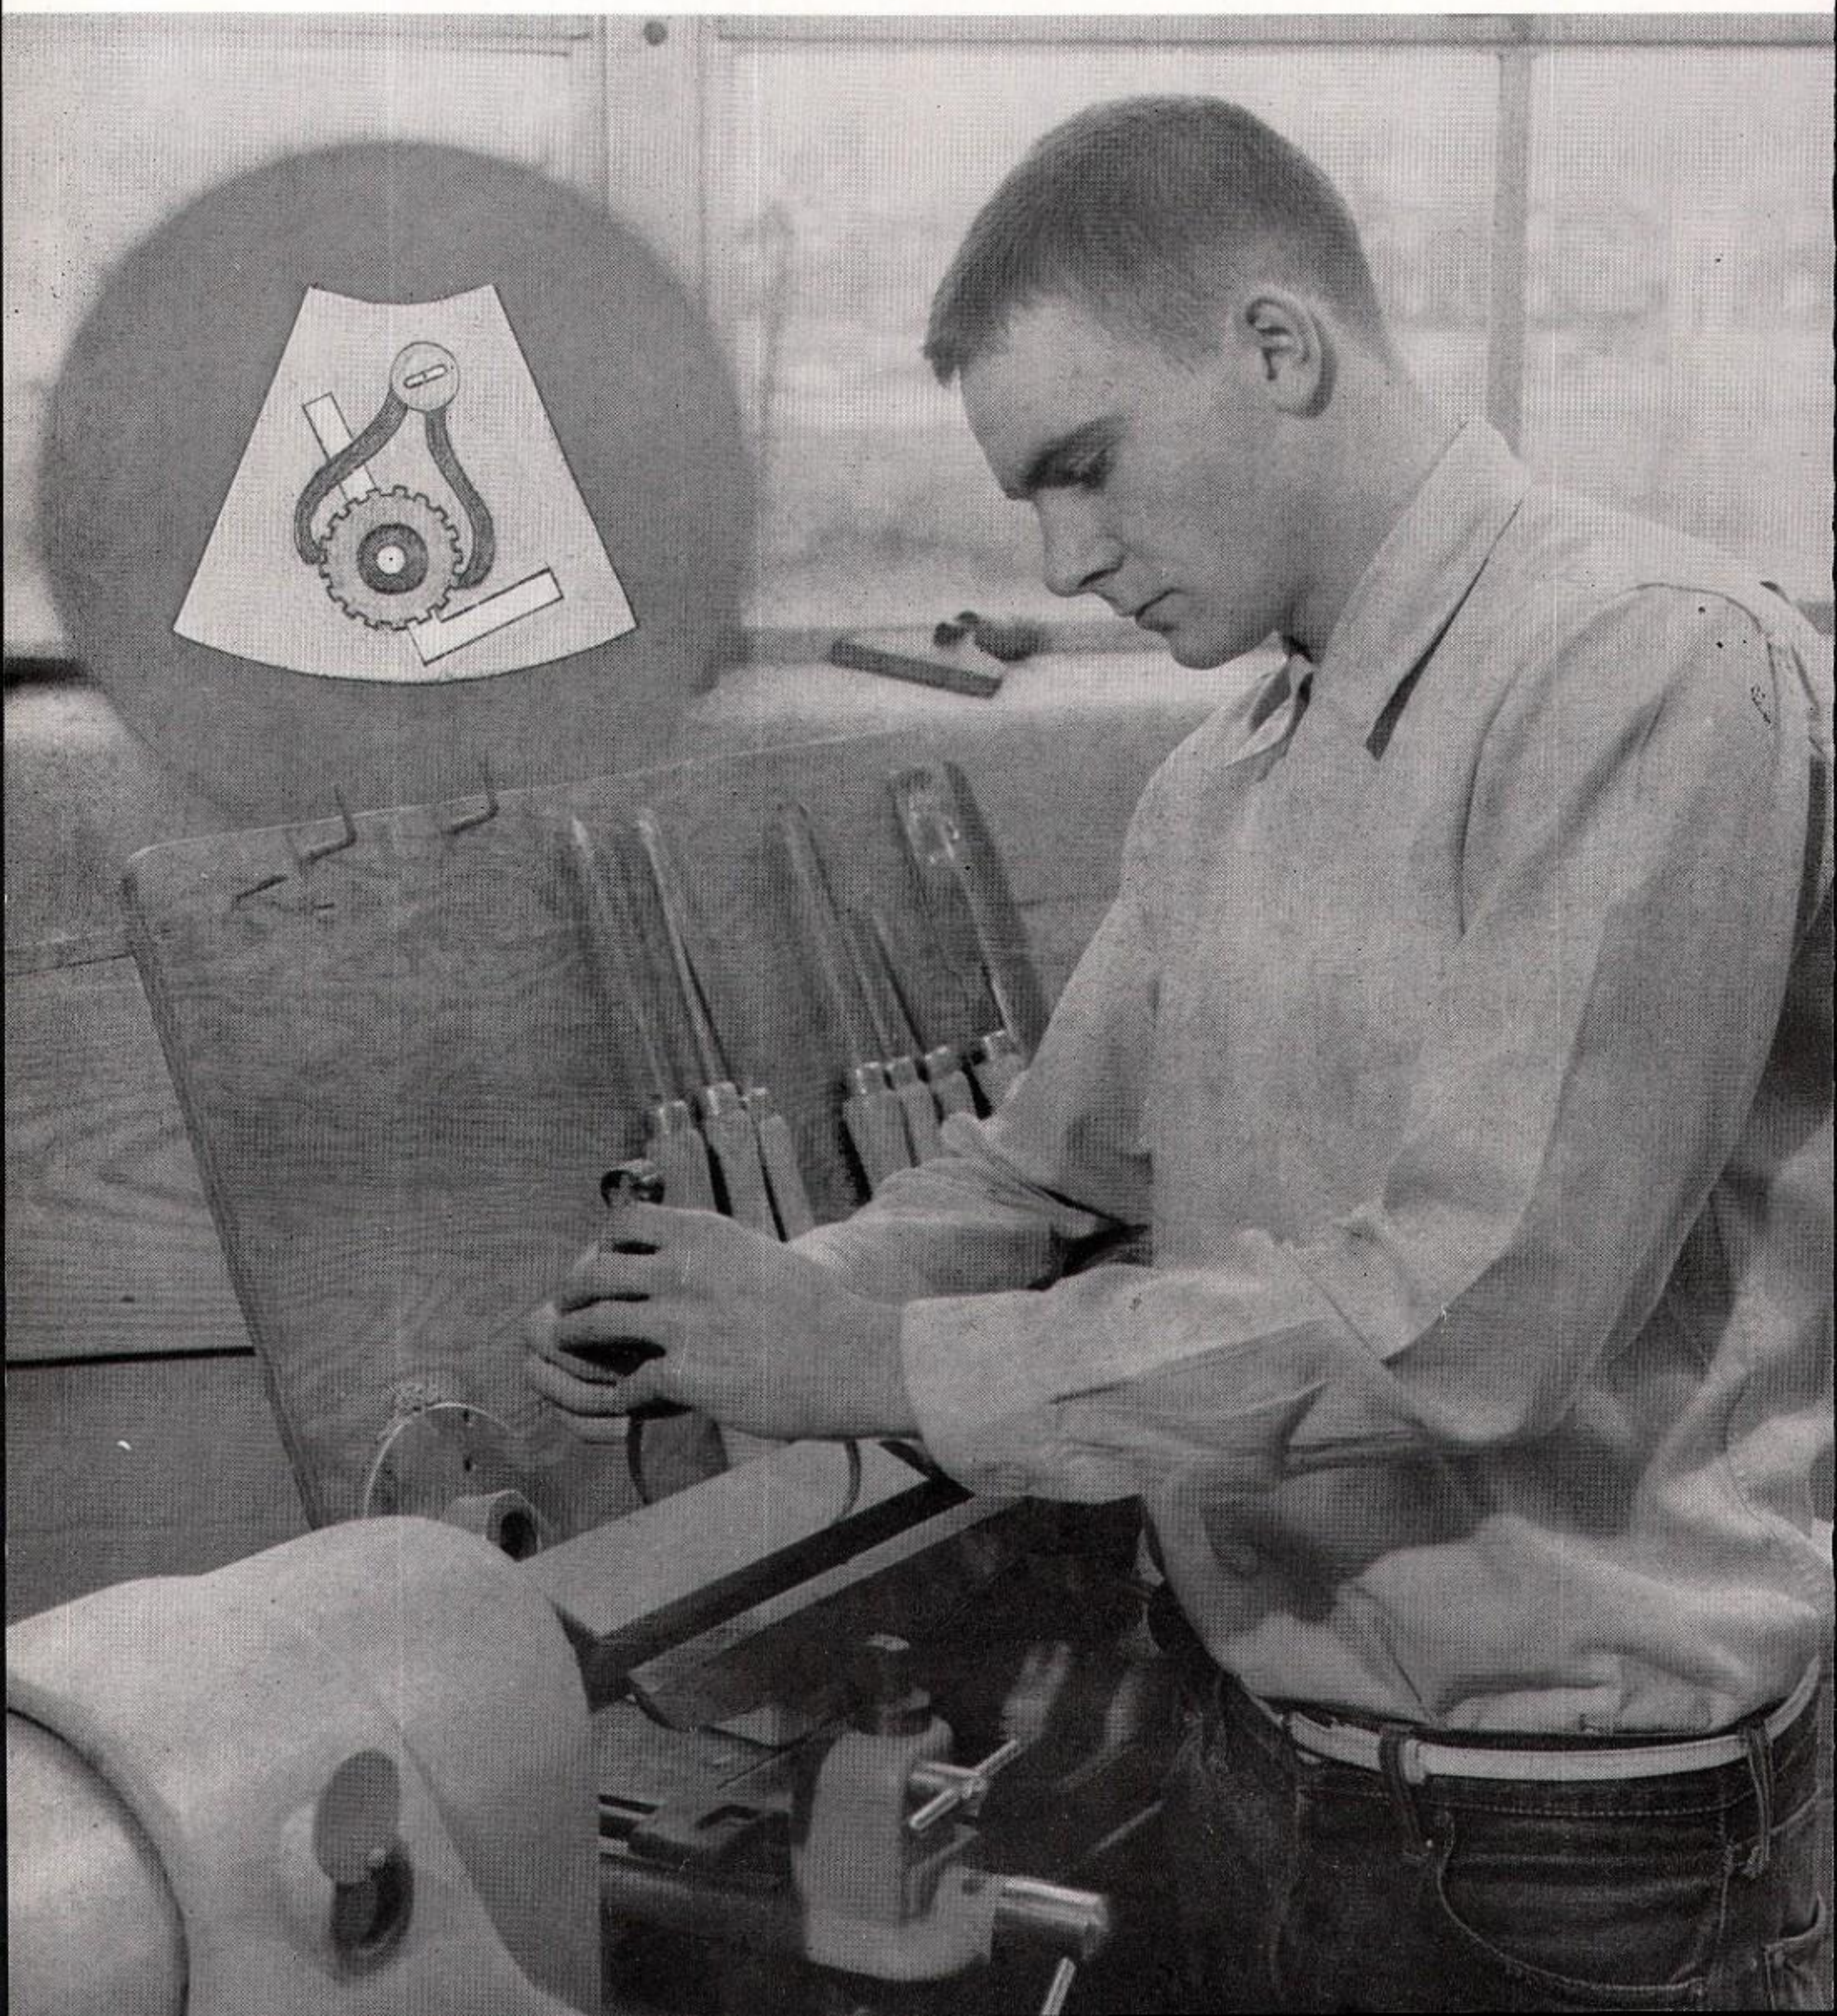
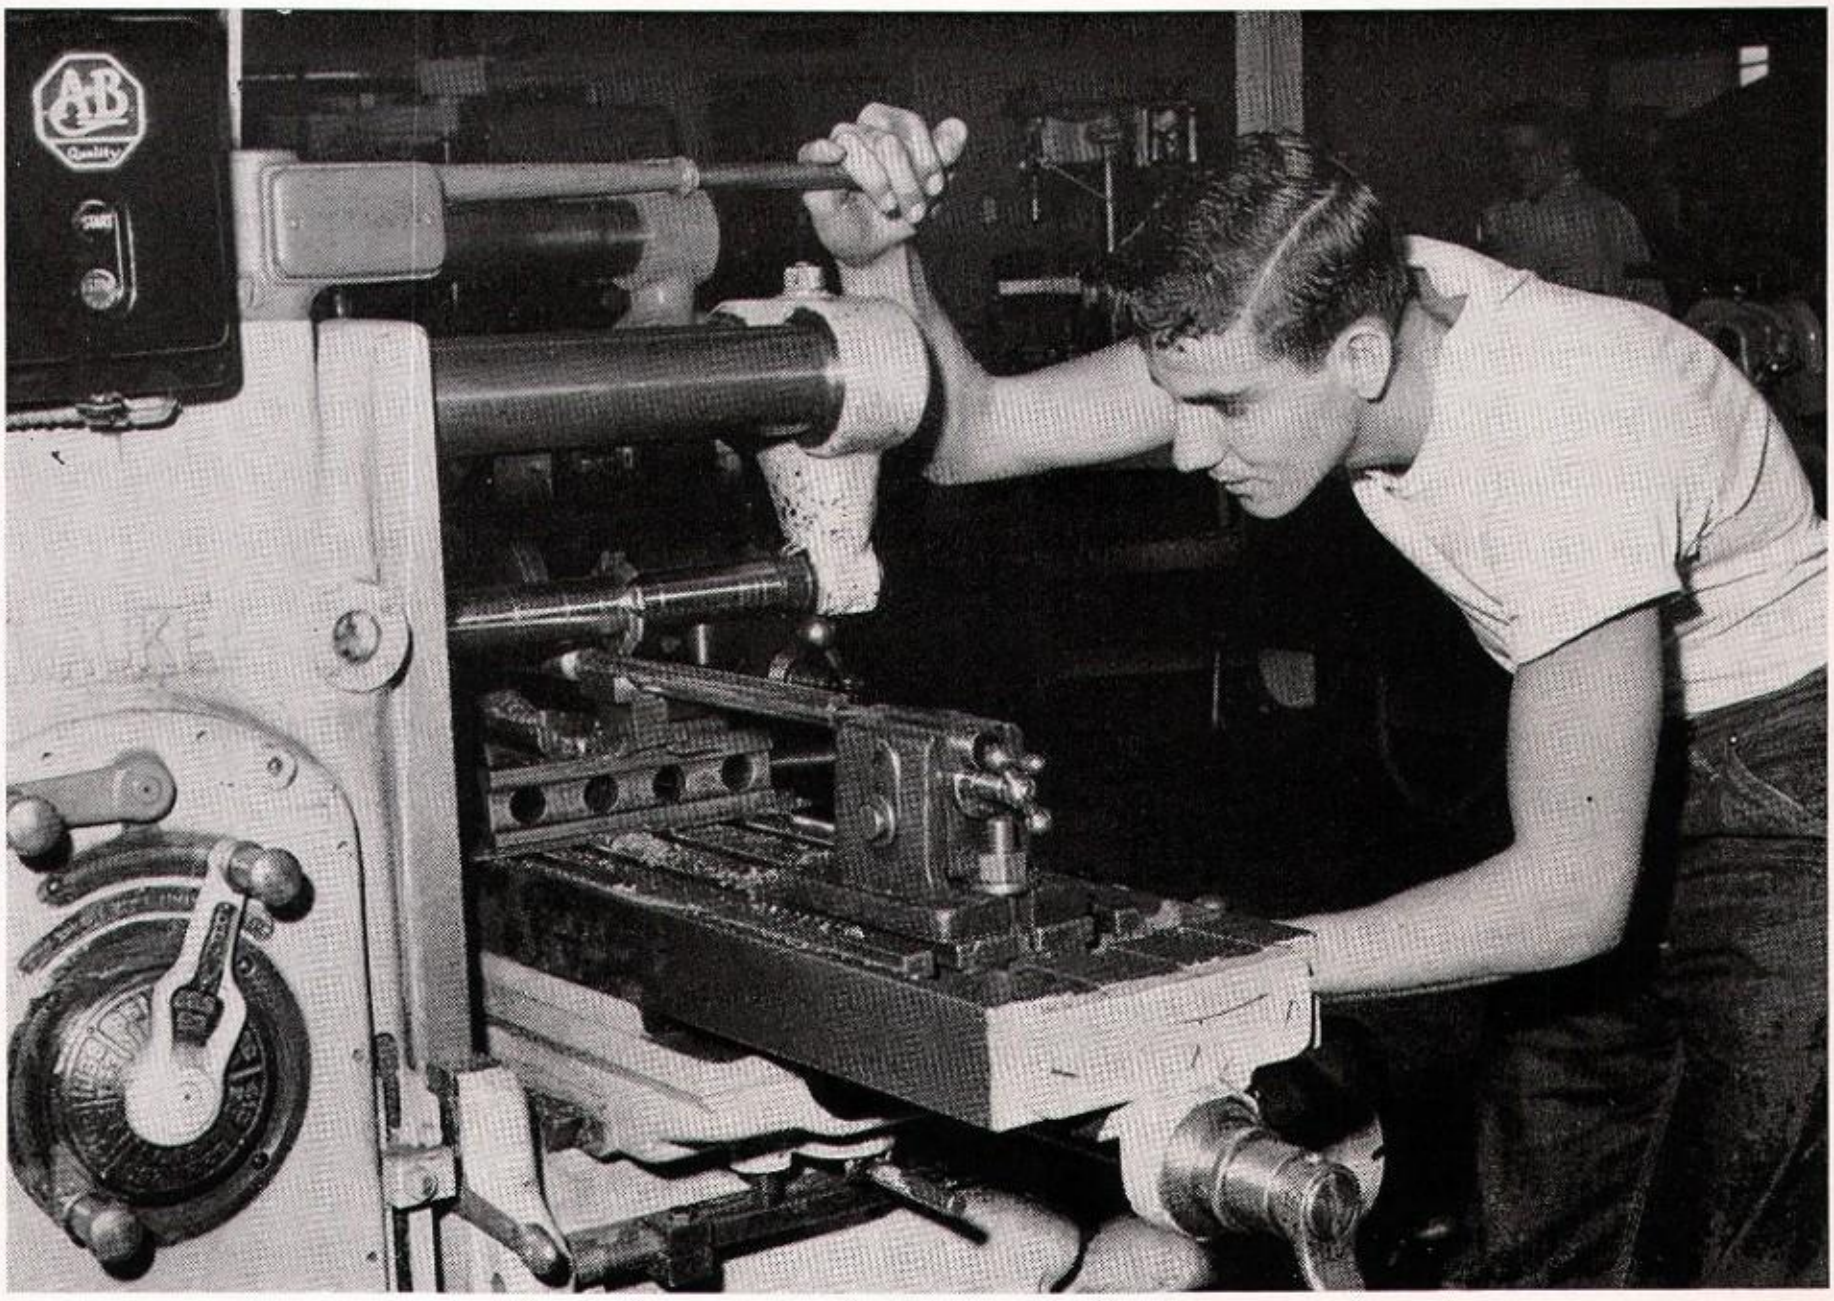
Industrial Arts

Since its origin in 1895, Manual Training High School has stressed training of the hands. Although in later years more emphasis has been placed on academic education, Manual's Industrial Arts Department maintains the most modern shop equipment to prepare workers for today's industries. Frank Breeden is shown here completing a wood turning job on one of the many lathes in the shop department.





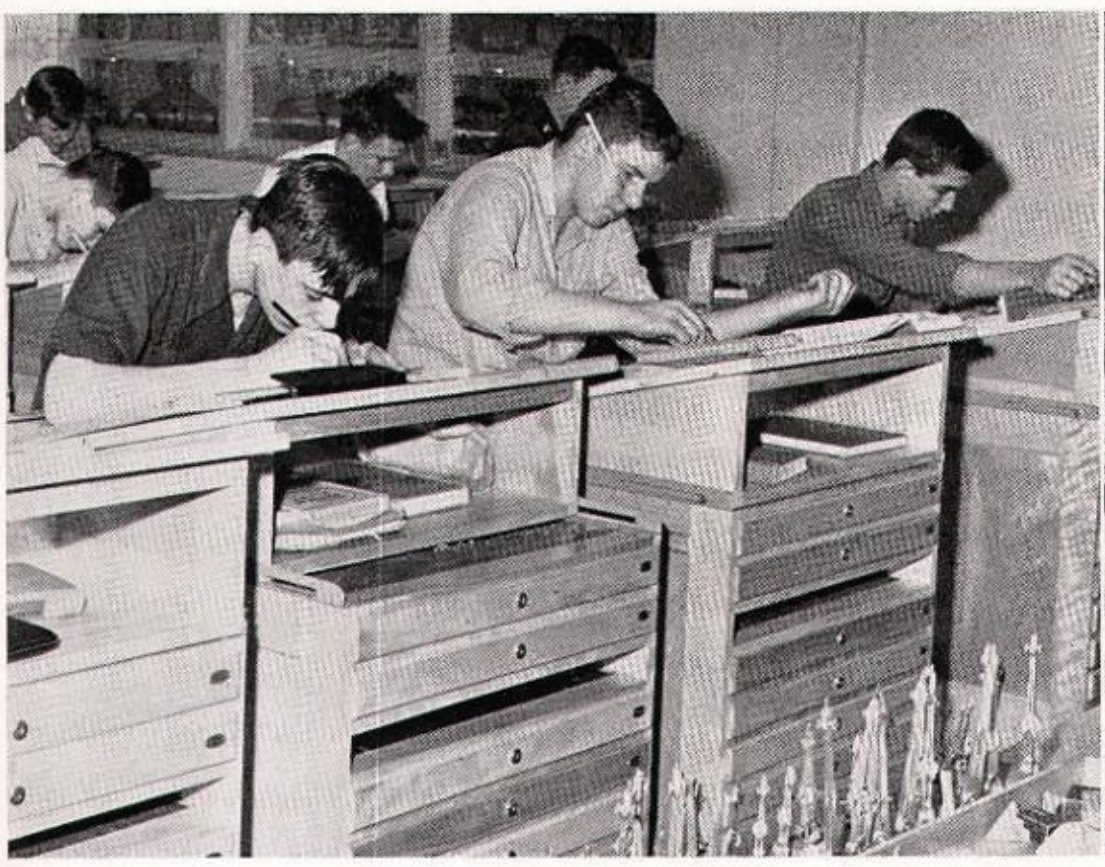
Instruction in Manual's complete machine shop prepares boys to meet the rigorous standards of modern industries. As a part of his training, Dick Hallam is shown above learning to operate the miller for cutting gears.

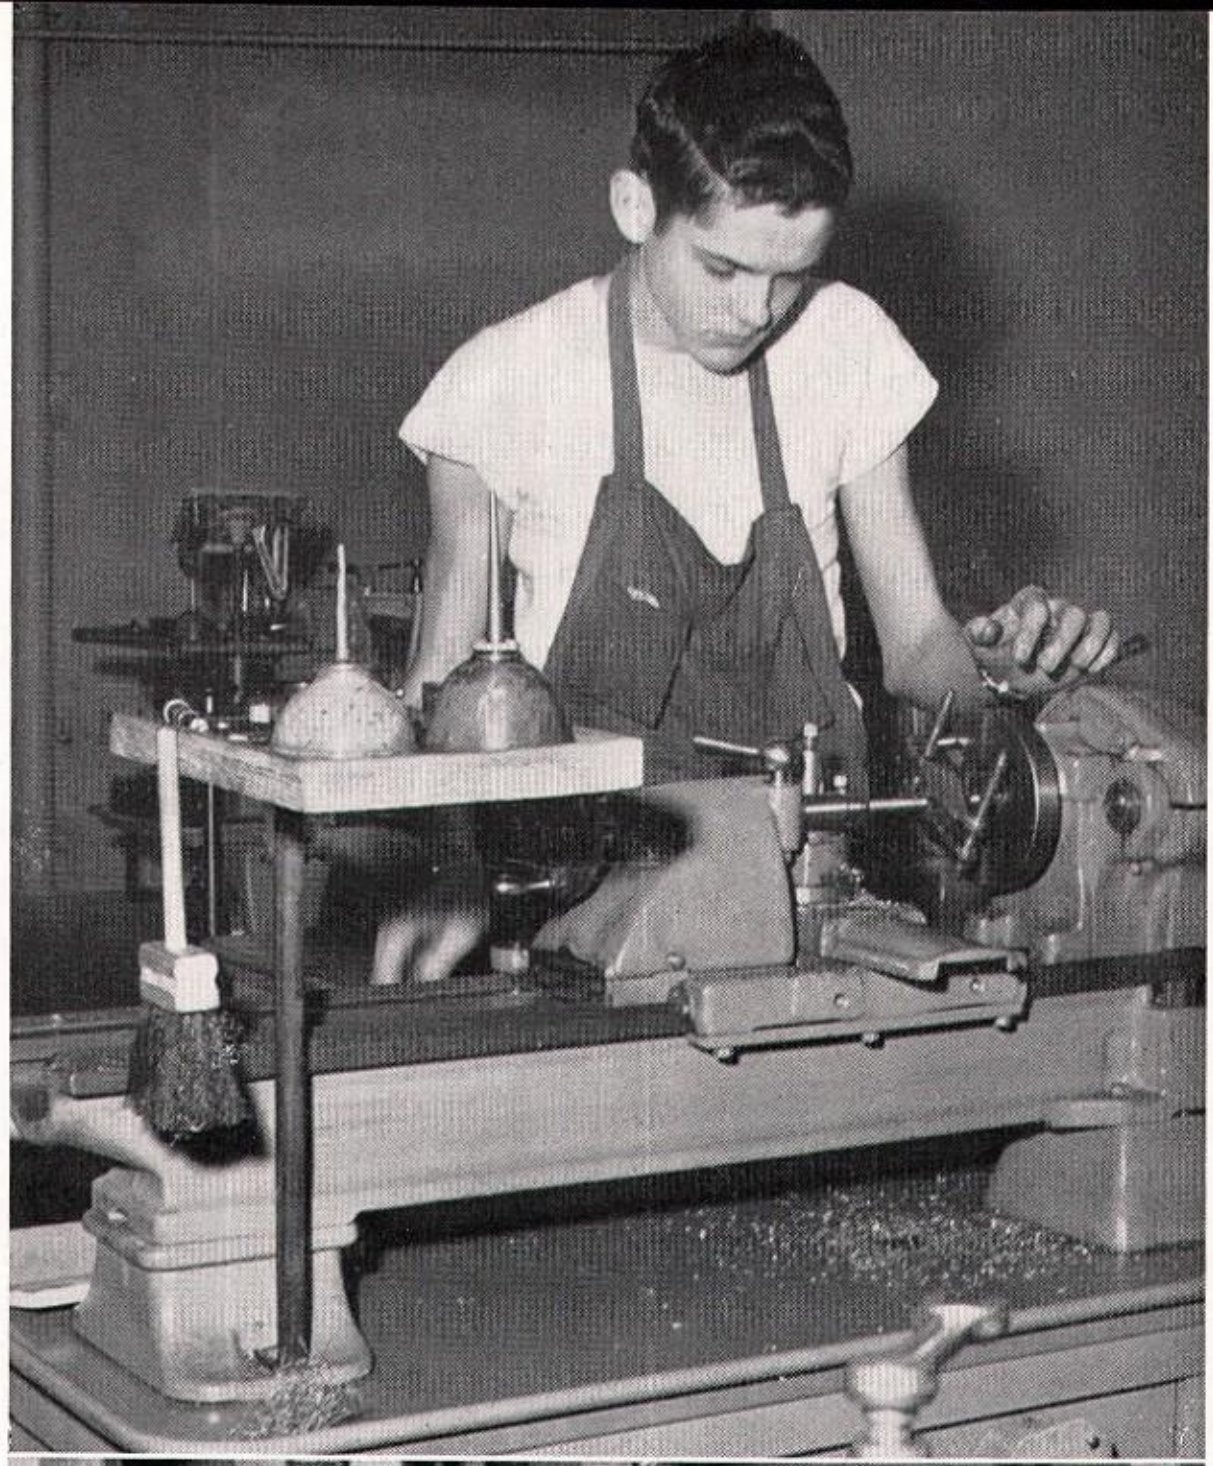
Emmerich Manual Training High School, the first high school in America to offer free industrial training, was founded by mechanically-minded men who, at the turn of the century, foresaw the need for educated workers.

Modern advancements have opened many fields to graduates of Manual's Industrial Arts Department. To keep pace with these innovations, the department now offers Radio and Electricity and Auto Mechanics.

Besides solving daily blueprint reading problems, mechanical drawing classes such as the one below design much of the Industrial Arts Department's equipment.

Programs, tickets, and posters for school events furnish practical experience for students in Printing, a recent addition to Manual's curriculum.





Lacking no ingenuity, the Industrial Arts Department often turns out tools needed in its various sections.

On the left, Larry Mitchell is using a lathe to machine a tool which was designed by students for use in the Auto Shop.

Shop Courses Emphasize Training of Hand for Industrial World

Usable projects make up the learn-as-you-do techniques used in Wood Shop classes. Starting with bowls and lamps and other small objects that can be turned on the lathe, boys progress to pieces of furniture for their homes. At the right Henry Bear, Robert Beck, and Gus Sansone smooth edges on a bookcase designed and built in Manual's woodshop.

Teenagers, 1955 edition, are car conscious and want to know the "how and why" of modern automobiles. Johnny Suttner and Jerry Carney, from down under, investigate the working parts of a practice motor.

Advanced Auto Shop students work on their own cars and those of trusting friends and faculty members. James E. Miller and Tom Finchum tune up a car motor for Sgt. Francis Conder of Manual's ROTC.

Honoraries

Manual students are achievement conscious and tally accumulative points from grades and activities toward listing in League of Honor. Those who stand out in accomplishment are awarded with membership in honorary and service organizations. Bob Arnold and Sandy Snider, Art Production Class, silk screen the badges which members of Masoma and Roines, Senior Honoraries, wear on Senior Days.

ROTC Unit Lends Militant Flavor to Manual

ROTC stands for Reserve Officers Training Corps, and Manual's unit in full uniform every Thursday and Friday is quite evident. The Manual ROTC battalion added another red star to its banner this spring as a reward for the Honor Rating won at last year's Federal Inspection. The Ordnance Inspection, an examination of weapons, gave Manual a rating of Excellent.

The Manual ROTC "passed in review" for Indianapolis in such city-wide parades as Veterans' Day, the "Zoo" Parade, and the annual Armed Forces Day Parade competition.

With strict military precision, the ROTC Color Guard presented the colors at School Auditoriums, and carried the Manual banners in city parades. They are Cadet Sgts. Harold Mueller, Louis Augustin, David Shackelford, and David Weber.

"Fire two on four" may sound like doubletalk, but it makes sense to ROTC students on rifle range. At target practice are Don Byers, Ronald Clark, M/Sgt. Jack Nunnery, Ronald Timmons, and Ned Woolbright.

Student Affairs Board Boosts Manual Moral

The Student Affairs Board, composed of representatives for all four classes, serves as a link between the school administration and the student body. Its main interest being the general welfare of the students, the Board sponsors such events as after-game dances and get-acquainted mixers for freshmen. The welfare of students other than Manualites is considered important too, as shown by the dance for the School for the Deaf. One of the big projects was Golden Rule Week, promoted by the Board for the city Federation of Student Councils, of which Manual's Al Helms was president. The Student Affairs Board is augmented by the Student Assembly, which is composed of home room representatives and aids in larger tasks.

Extra-Curricular Activities Add Interests to Busy School Days

Extra-curricular activities round out a busy life at Manual for most students. Some are elected to honoraries as a reward; others join groups of students who share mutual interests.

Roines and Masoma, pictured at the beginning of this section, are honoraries for seniors with good records of service and scholarship. Quill and Scroll is an international honor society for high school journalists, and the recently installed Thespian Troupe is part of a national dramatic honorary. A new chapter of the nation-wide Future Teachers of America was added to Manual's organizations this spring. Future Homemakers of America, Hi-Y, and Tri-Hi-Y are also affiliated with national student groups.

The strongest evidence of the Manual Tri-Hi-Y was seen in the sale of red derbies during the pre-Sectional excitement. When the derbies were sold out, novelty caps were added to the stock. Here Tri-Hi-Y girls sport their wares. Mary Ellen Craig, was president, Bertie Saffell, vice-president, Lin Schulz, secretary, and Marcia Jaggers, treasurer.

Athletics

Manual's Athletic Program follows her objective—training of mind, hand, and heart. While stimulating healthful living, it instills in its participants the team spirit which stems from friendly competition in sports. Symbols for four sports represent the Athletic Program in the Mosaic.

Athletics Build Healthy Bodies and Attitudes

Redskins enjoy a well-rounded program of sports at Manual. With the exception of tennis, teams are maintained in all sports. Left, Mr. Harry Thomas, athletic director, places an order for equipment.

All boys have an equal opportunity to play on one of Manual's teams. Girls participate in intramural games, and boys not playing on school teams have an opportunity to compete in intramural sports.

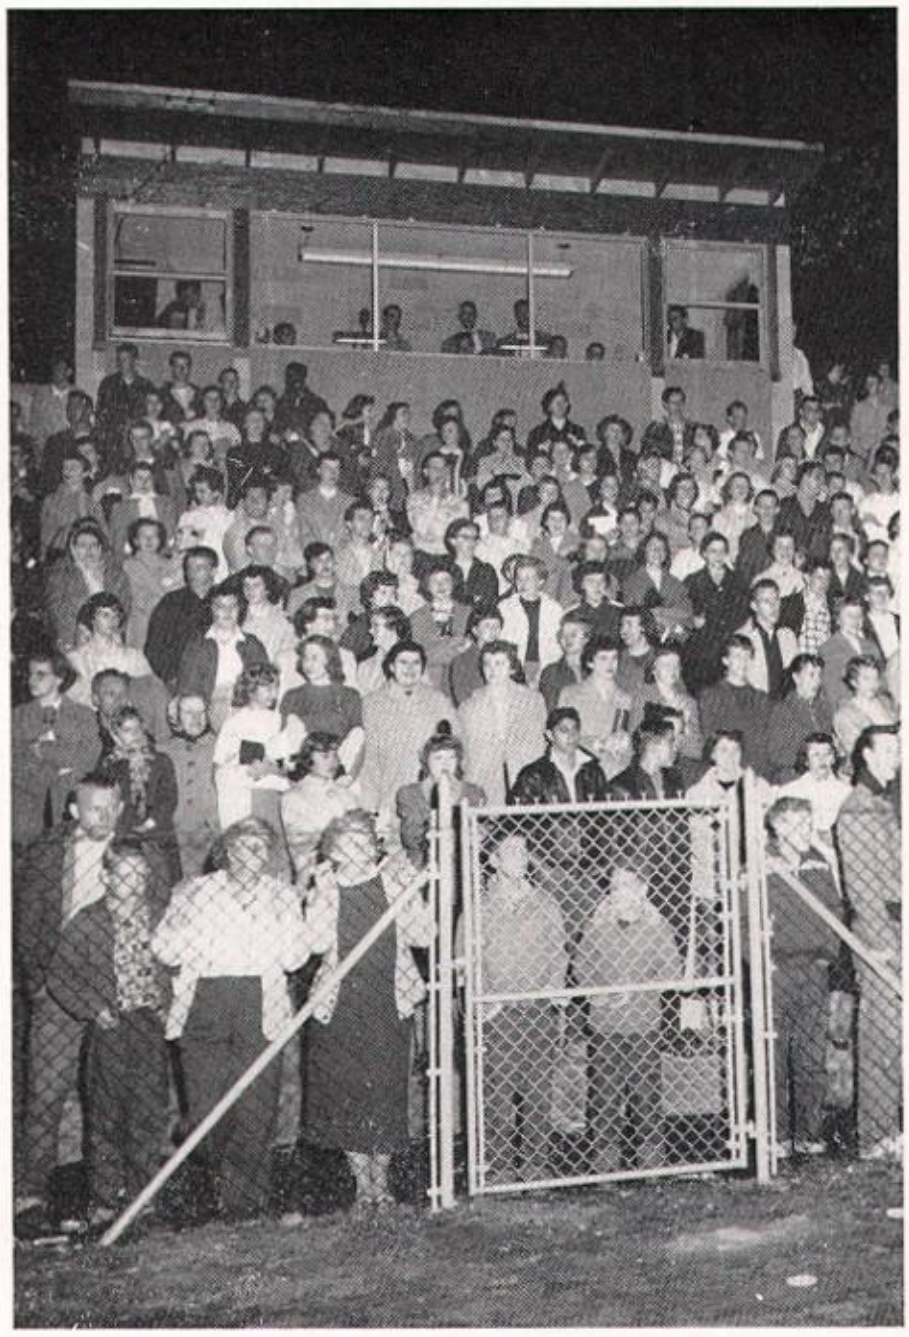
One highlight of the 1954 football season was the second annual Homecoming game climaxed by the crowning of King Manual and his Queen. This year's royal couple, George Gritton and Barbara Brown, were crowned by last year's King and Queen, Dick Carter and Jean Sommer, between halves of the game with Southport. Bob White and Cathy Burger served as crown bearers.

The Homecoming King and Queen were chosen by an all-school election from a group of candidates nominated by the senior class.

Carl Short, Manual gridder, grabs a Ben Davis ball-carrier in an attempt to halt him. Redskins Wiley Scudder (51) and Tom Vittorio (63) come up fast to aid Short.

George Smallwood, Redskin halfback, finds a hole in the Ben Davis line and scoots through it for a gain before he is stopped by a Ben Davis player.

Twenty Redskin Lettermen Will Return for the 1955 Gridiron Season



Inexperience hurt the 1954 season's gridders more than anything else since only four seasoned boys were on hand when the first game rolled around.

The Redskins found the going rough as they lost all nine of their games. Crispus Attucks, Sacred Heart, Washington, Howe, Warren Central, Ben Davis, Southport, Broad Ripple, and Shortridge were their opponents.

Twenty-five boys earned major awards and all but five of these boys will be back next season.

Charles Hight received the Gilbert Mordoh Award for the outstanding gridder of the 1954 season.

The reserve and freshman football teams finished their seasons with identical records. Each team captured one win in five starts.

This new steam-heated press box at Delavan Smith Athletic Field was a gift from Manual's Dads Club. It was used throughout the football season by many reporters and sportscasters.

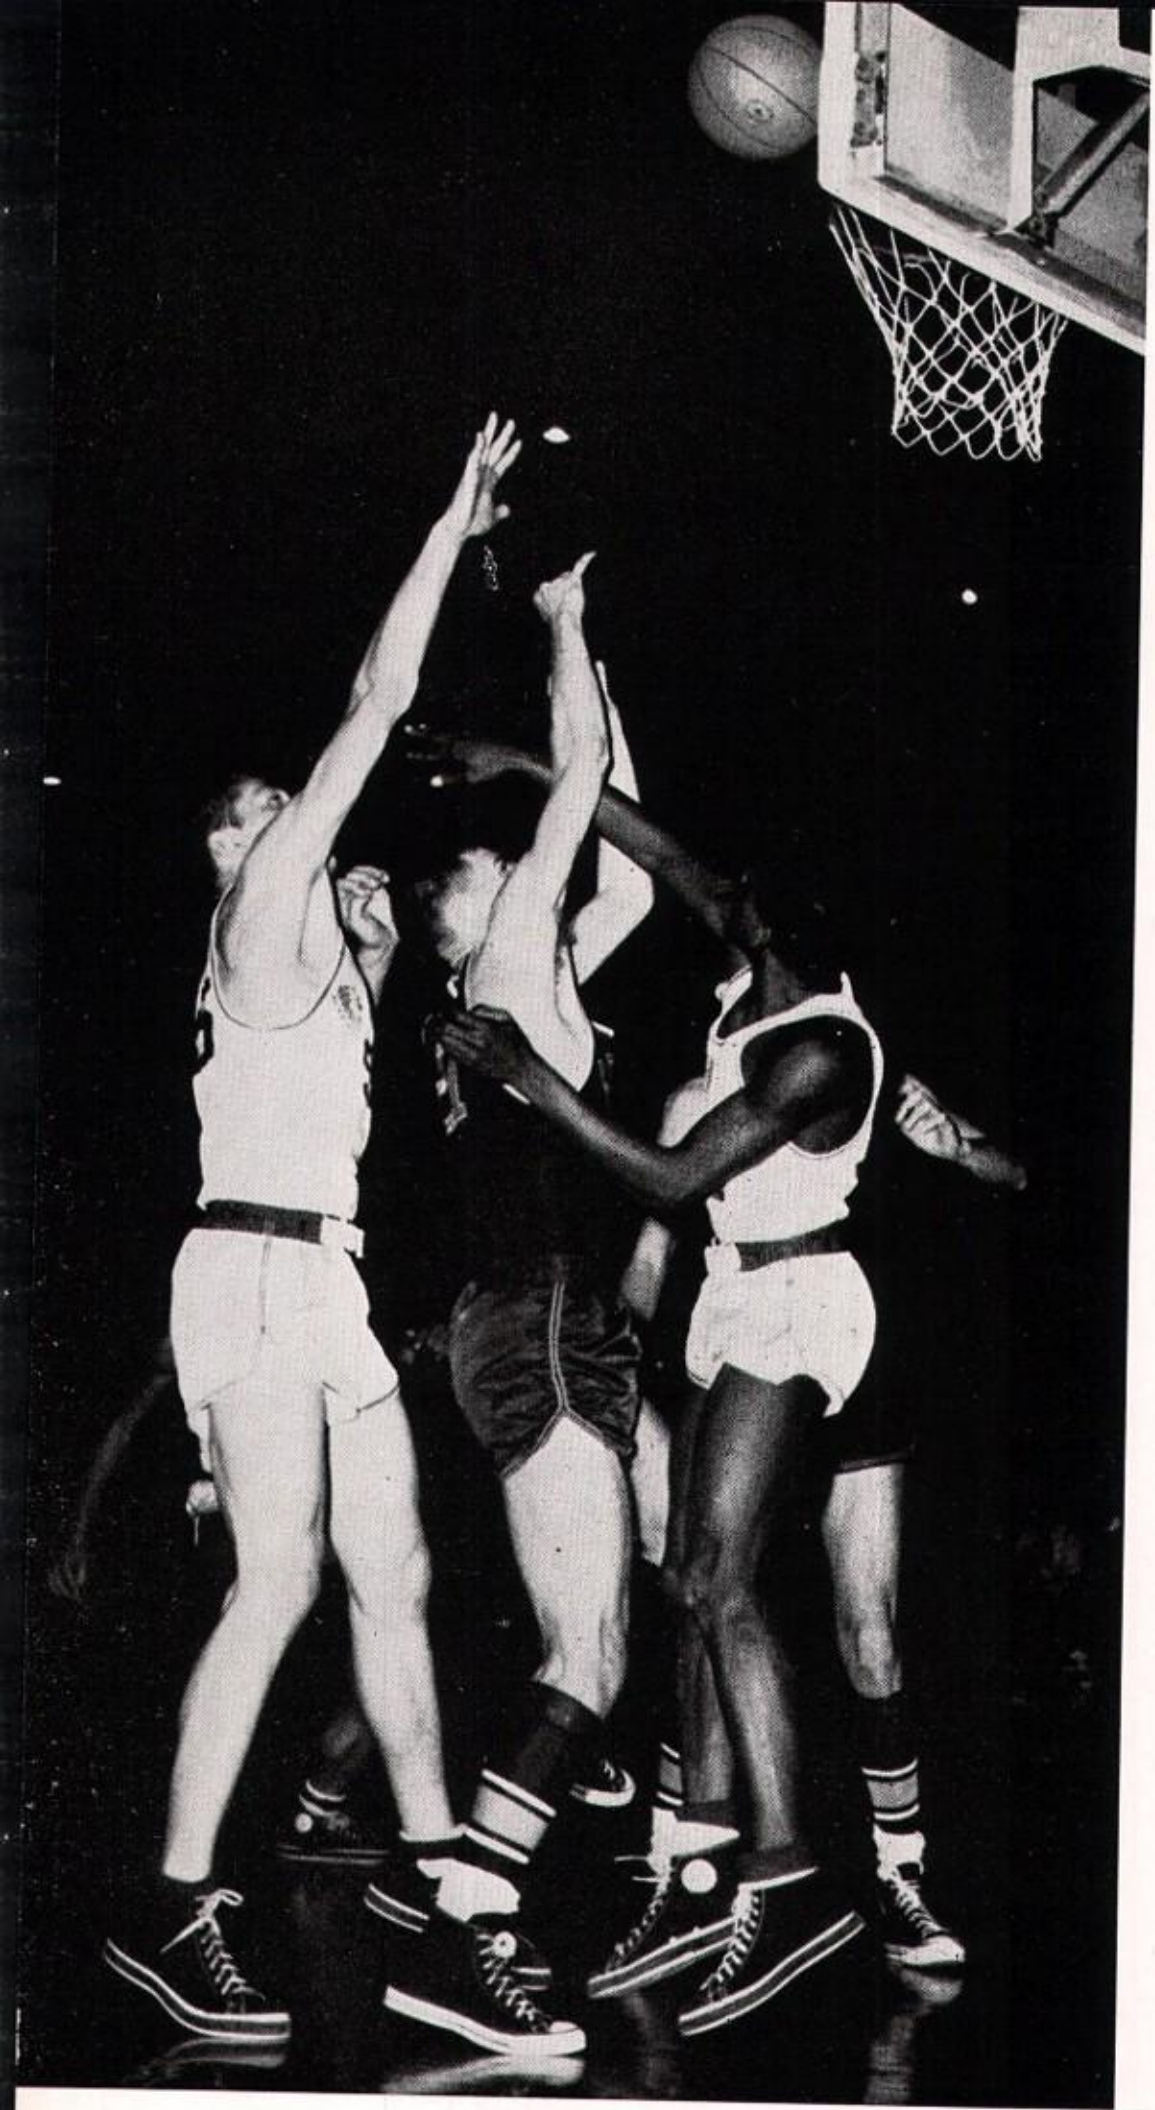
Manual fans not only could watch an exciting game but also munch on hot dogs and donuts. Dressed in white hats and aprons, Manual's P.T.-A. and Dads Club manned the three refreshment stands at the stadium during football season and also operated an indoor stand during basketball season.

The Dads Club sponsored its annual Fish Fry before the game with Sacred Heart in September.

Manual's Band is shown (right) entering the Butler University Bowl for the third All-City High School Jamboree. Barbara McCurdy represented the Redskins as Jamboree queen.

Manualites cheer their teams on at every game, at home or on the road. The Pep Club, consisting of 100 white-shirted, red-tied members, leads the rooting section at football and basketball games. After many conference period practices, the Club marched during the Homecoming Game, forming a football which encircled the Homecoming King and Queen candidates.

The Pep Club was a permanent fixture at home basketball games, cooperating with the Pep Band to do special skits and cheers.



Inexperienced Net Team Finishes Strong

Last second shots, upsets, missed free throws, all were a part of the excitement of the 1954-55 basketball season.

With an in-experienced team, Coach Russ McConnell guided his cagers to a 9-12 season record. Among Manual's wins were a hard-fought victory over arch-rival Shortridge, 36-33. Other wins of the campaign were chalked up over Warren Central, Sacred Heart, Deaf School, Speedway, Washington, Greensburg, Beech Grove, and a repeat victory over Warren Central in the opening game of the Sectional.

Losses came at the hands of Lawrence Central, Cathedral, Ben Davis, Howe, Broad Ripple, Columbus, New Albany, Crispus Attucks (twice), Southport, and Tech (twice).

Carl Short, top rebounder and leading scorer of the team, received the most valuable player award while Jerry Clancy won the free throw trophy.

Seniors playing their last year of high school ball were Carl Lasley, Paul Harris, Karl Walker, and Clancy. Next season's team will have a nucleus of Bob Lindemann, Kenny Wright, Charlie Cook, and Short; all were starters.

for 9-12 Season Record

Coach Raymond Ashley's reserve team turned in a season record of four wins in nineteen games. Victories of the campaign were racked up over Lawrence Central, 46-36, Sacred Heart, 36-23, Deaf School, 51-8, and Speedway, 28-23.

The B-Team lost close games to Howe, 39-31, Beech Grove, 26-25, and Wood School, 30-29, Washington, 39-32, and Greensburg, 35-28.

Other setbacks came from Cathedral, 39-26, Warren Central, 27-17, Ben Davis, 34-24, Broad Ripple, 37-26, Columbus, 32-19, Tech, 42-22, New Albany, 49-31, Shortridge, 35-21, Crispus Attucks, 34-18, and Southport, 46-26.

Under first year coach, Richard Cummins, the freshman team captured ten wins in twenty-one games.

Wins of the season were over Broad Ripple, 38-28, Shortridge, 26-25, Greenwood, 48-16, Washington, 33-15, Scecina Memorial, 40-27, Martinsville, 41-38, Shortridge, 39-33, Warren Central, 36-32, Wood School, 33-31, and Howe, 35-28.

Losses went to Cathedral, 54-38, Columbus, (twice) 51-33 and 35-33, Sacred Heart, (twice) 37-36 and 30-19, Tech, 42-28, Wood School, 26-18, Crispus Attucks, (twice) 36-26 and 34-29, Scecina Memorial, 27-24, and Ben Davis, 41-23.

As a team, the freshmen scored a total of 669 points while their opponents scored 689.

Baseballers Capture Eight Games During 1954 Season

The diamondmen, coached by Walt Floyd, finished out the 1954 season with a record of eight wins against seven losses.

The Redskins started off fast with wins over Shortridge, 4-3, Howe, 2-1, Warren Central, 5-3, and Crispus Attucks, 5-3, before meeting their first loss of the year to Lawrence Central in extra innings, 6-5.

Other wins of the year were racked up over Southport, 7-0, Attucks, 7-1, and Franklin Township, 3-0.

Losses came at the hands of Broad Ripple, 5-0, Ben Davis, 5-1, Cathedral, 12-2, Washington, 4-3, and Tech, 9-3.

In the city invitational tourney, Manual defeated Attucks for the third straight time, 5-1. In the next game, the Redskins fell to Shortridge's Blue Devils in ten innings, 4-3. The Blue Devils went on to win the championship.

The reserve team, under the guidance of Howard Thrall, topped Franklin Township, Howe, Washington, and Cathedral. Defeating Manual were Howe, Broad Ripple, and Tech.

1954 Mile Relay Team Won a First Place for Manual at Hoosier Relays

For the third consecutive year, a Manual mile relay team won a first place in the Spring running of the Hoosier relays at Indiana University last year. The team was composed of Tom Hofmeister, Joe Caruso, Al Helms, and Ronnie Mescall.

Coach Ray Van Arsdale's thinly-clads opened their season with a loss to Crispus Attucks but bounced back with wins over Ben Davis and Lawrence Central. The tracksters closed out their regular season with a loss to Columbus. In the city meet, Manual placed sixth and tied for third place honors with Southport in the Sectionals.

The frosh trackmen, coached by Noah Ellis, won four meets while dropping only two. The beginning runners brought home a trophy from the Columbus relays, placing first in a field of more than 20 teams. Manual's freshmen also placed second in the city meet and third in the Wood School's Freshman relays.

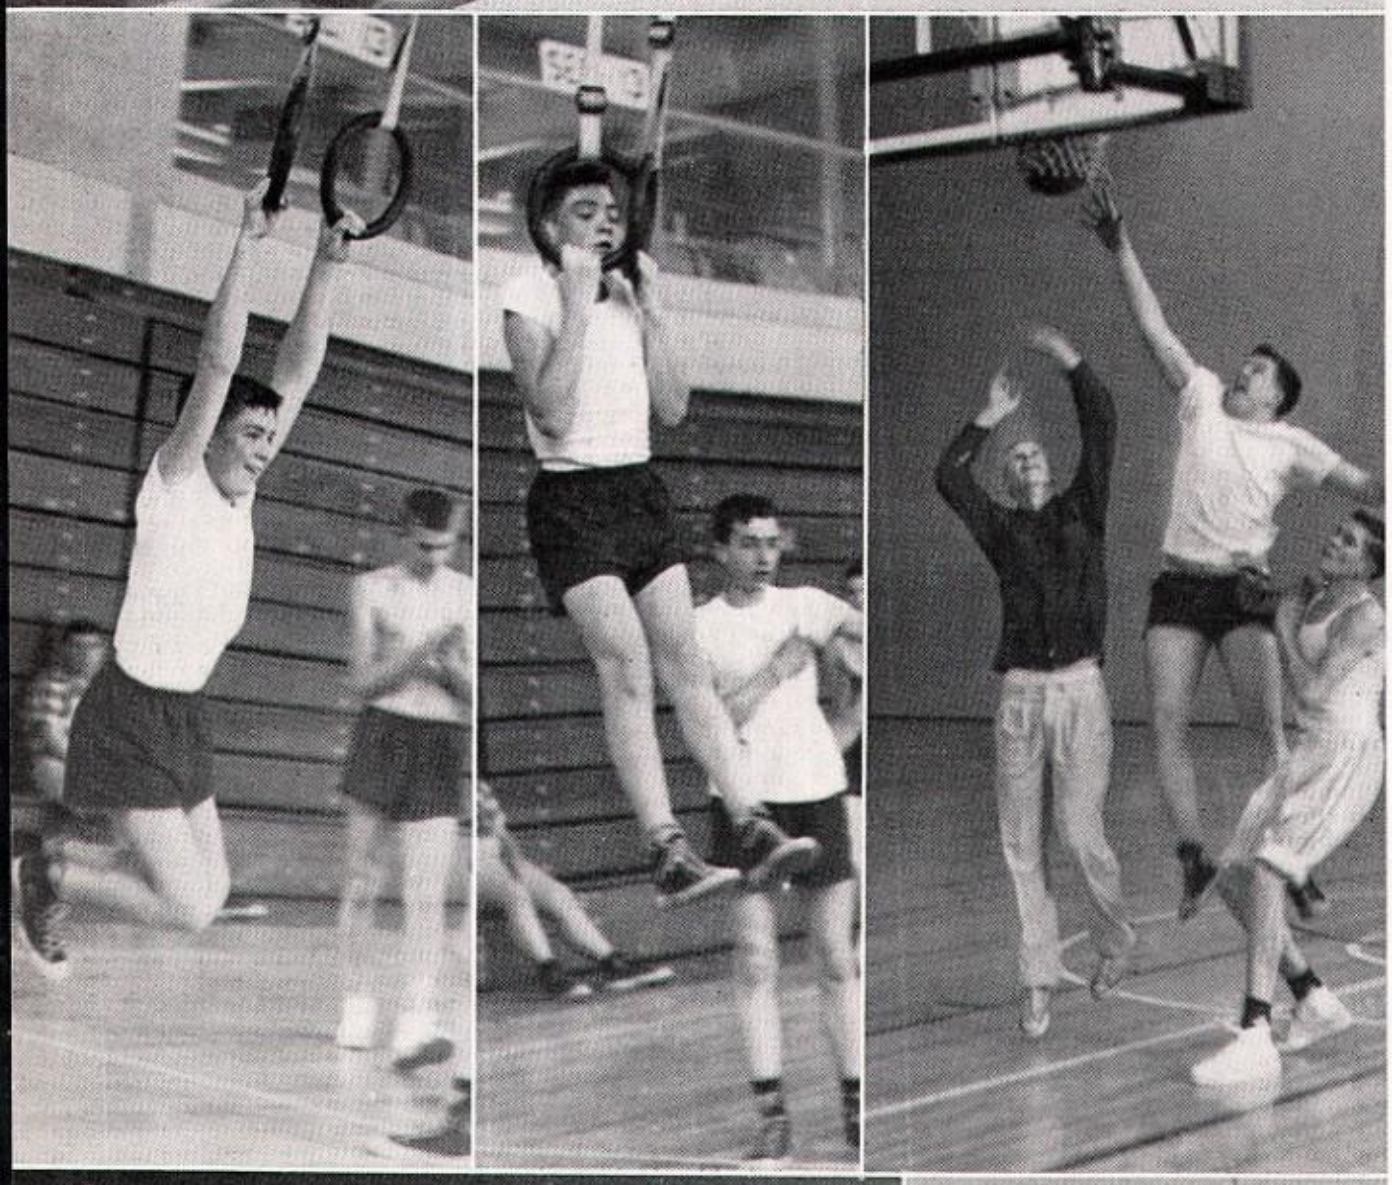
Grapplers Win Seven Meets

Manual's second year wrestling team came out ahead in seven of sixteen meets. Shown left is letterman Bob Schofield about to pin his opponent. Under the coaching of Jack Foster, the grapplers defeated Royalton, 50-0, and Bluffton, 48-2, in a quadrangular meet. Victories were also chalked up over Washington, 32-14, Marion, 43-11, Peru, 30-8, Broad Ripple, 26-18, and the Kentucky School for the Blind, 33-21.

The squad lost close meets to Decatur Central, Anderson, Shortridge, Ben Davis, and University High of Bloomington.

Other loses were to Southport's state champions, Crawfordsville, Lafayette Jeff, and Tech.



Gym Classes Are Fun

Boys' and Girls' gym classes are very active. Boys enrolled in gym have an opportunity to develop themselves in the wide program. The boys participate in the semi-annual Decathlon contest. Scoring is based on their accomplishments on the gym apparatus.

Girls' physical education program includes organized teams in intramural basketball, softball, and volleyball. The girls' program also includes tennis, ping pong, archery, and bowling. Annual awards are given to girls taking part in three or more sports. The highest award is the Frenfel Award, presented to girls participating in more than nine sports.

Cheerleaders Act as Official Spirit Sparkers at Games

Manual cheerleaders had a busy season leading yells at all football and basketball games. Backed by the Pep Club and Pep Band, the yell leaders raised Manual spirits to a high pitch.

The varsity cheerleaders joined others from Indianapolis High Schools in backing Crispus Attucks in the Regionals, Semifinals, and Finals of the State Basketball Tourney.

The cheersters attended a conference at Indiana University where they exchanged routines with yell leaders from other schools. Sponsors are Mr. William Kleyla and Mr. Ben Parke.

Album

Like the traditional family album, The Ivian pictures the Manual family—students, faculty, and staff.

Becoming a senior is the climax of every Manualite's school dreams, so seniors lead all the rest. Pictured below, senior officers discuss class plans. They are Karl Walker, treasurer; Bonnie Johnson, vice-president; Barbara McCurdy, secretary, and James Stainbrook, president.

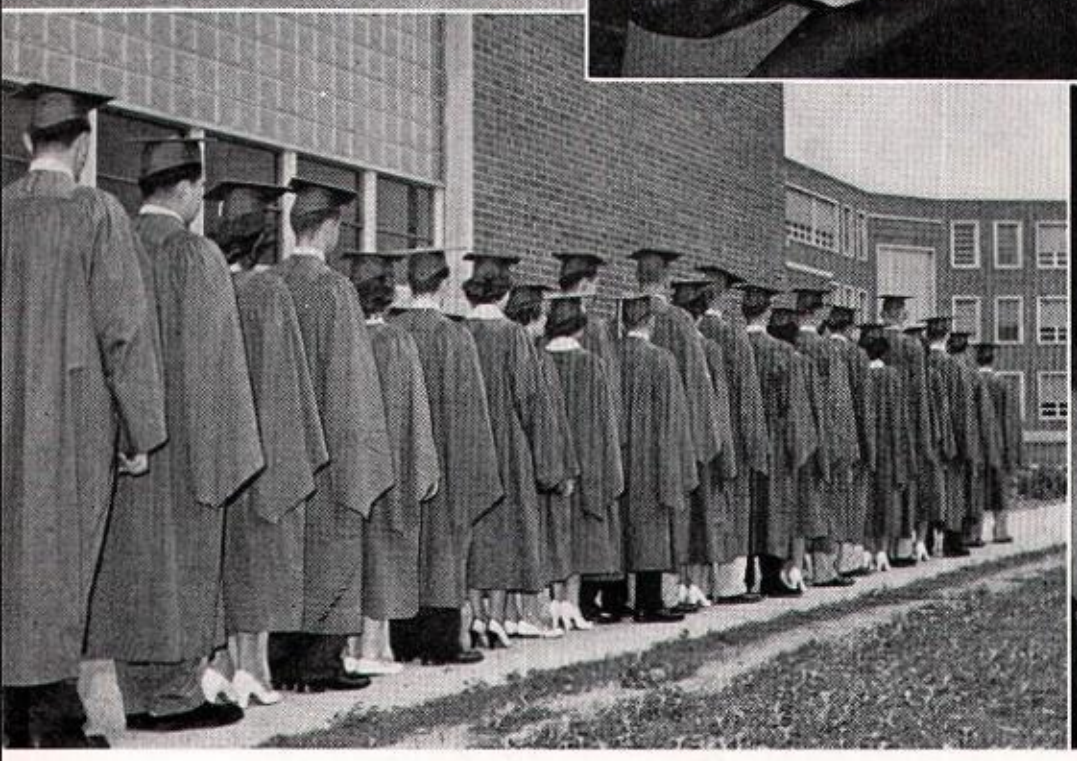
Senior President James Stainbrook receives the senior gavel from Principal C. Edgar Stahl in the traditional manner on Senior Day. This is the day on which seniors announce their colors and don their Senior Arm Bands.

Climax of Senior Day is an after-school party, for seniors only, in the Cafeteria. Amy Lou Nelson and Martha Detamore serve punch at the refreshment table, while Janie Glass arranges cups for the guests.

Each year on Opportunity Day, which was January 5 this year, representatives from various schools, colleges, and businesses visit Manual to assist students in planning their futures. At the right Senior Marilyn Borror is pinning identifications on some of the guests. Fifty-five guest counselors participated, twenty-eight from career areas, nine from colleges, and eighteen from terminal education fields.



Busy Senior Days! – My How They Fly

Juniors

One of the biggest and most important projects undertaken this year by the Student Affairs Board was the designing and making of city school banners. These large banners, made in the colors of Manual's opponents, hang in the gym along with the Manual Banner, shown left. Banners of the other schools are similar to the Shortridge one being stitched by Nancy Garrigus and Miriam Scharfe in the lower left picture.

Members of the 'Inner Sanctum' Help to Keep Manual Running Smoothly

Advertising

"Don't hide your light . . ." So goes the saying which expresses the views of Ivian advertisers. In The Ivian's "live-ad" section, these businessmen and women have found a method to uncover their "light" for a large group of teen-agers who wield a tremendous influence over buying power on the Southside. Carl Huffman and Joe Wolsiffer, below, emphasize this proverb by dramatizing it.
